

Summer Internship Opportunity!

at the Wildlife Center of Silicon Valley

This is an on-the-job learning opportunity for hard-working, dedicated individuals interested in experiencing and learning about wildlife rehabilitation.

Interns will get to experience incoming wildlife, learn different treatment techniques and requirements for the many different species WCSV receives, capture and release wildlife, and assist WCSV's staff in training new volunteers. Interns will also have an opportunity to learn different diagnostic techniques such as avian and mammal fecal testing and blood work.

This is an unpaid internship with a minimum commitment of 20 hours per week for three months. Please send a cover letter, resume and two references to Anna Van Patten at volunteermanager@wcsv.org by March 1st, 2019 to be considered for an interview.

Responsibilities Include:

- Providing care to the orphaned, sick and injured wildlife admitted to WCSV
- Preparing food and feeding animals in care
- Cleaning enclosures, kennels, and doing other cleaning tasks such as laundry and dishes
- Providing enrichment projects for the animals
